First Quarter 2016

HUDSON VALLEY LUXURY REAL ESTATE MARKET OVERVIEW

Dutchess, Columbia and Ulster County residential sales over $750,000

Sales of luxury homes declined across the country in the first quarter of 2016 as turmoil in global financial markets appeared to weigh on the confidence of potential homebuyers.

Driven in part by concerns about slowing economic growth in the U.S. and China, stocks around the world sunk sharply to start the new year. In the U.S., the Standard & Poor's 500 stock index shed 10.5 percent of its value in just six weeks. The index then reversed course as quickly as it had tumbled, recovering all of its losses and more by the end of March. Still, the volatility left many investors—and apparently many potential luxury homebuyers—unsettled.

In the three-county region covered by this report—Dutchess, Columbia and Ulster counties—22 luxury properties sold in the first quarter, down from 29 in the year-earlier first quarter. The median sale price was little changed at $1.02 million versus $1.06 million a year earlier. The average price jumped to $1.6 million from $1.5 million, but that gain was attributable almost entirely to one large transaction, a $9.4 million sale in Dutchess County.

With buyers apparently edgy, the average time that for-sale homes were on the market in the first quarter rose to 287 days, up from 165 a year earlier. Sellers who did find buyers often found themselves discounting their price to close their deals, with the average listing discount growing to -15.5 percent versus -6.4 percent in the first quarter of 2015.

Despite the downturn in activity, sellers mostly kept their homes on the market. In fact, the number of properties for sale rose to 480, up from 398 in the year-earlier first quarter.

Dutchess County

Dutchess County is typically the most active luxury real estate market in the Hudson Valley, and that held true again in the first quarter as the county saw 11 sales close. That was equal to the total sales in neighboring Columbia and Ulster counties combined, but down from 16 sales in the year-earlier first quarter.

The highest-profile transaction by far was the sale of Astor Courts, one of the grandest of the legendary Hudson River properties. Sited high on a bluff just outside the village of Rhinebeck, with a view of the Hudson River below, the Beaux Arts structure was built between 1902 and 1904 for John Jacob Astor IV and his wife, Ava. It was designed by American architect Stanford White as a sporting facility, with guest bedrooms for visitors. It later became known as the Ferncliff Casino, adopting a once popular architectural term not for gambling halls but for sporting venues. Now a private residence—Chelsea Clinton was married there in 2010—it sold for $9.4 million, marking the first Hudson Valley sale over $9 million since 2014.

Thanks to the Astor Courts transaction, the median sale price in Dutchess County rose to $1.4 million during the first quarter of 2016, up from $945,000 a year earlier.

Continuing a trend that stretches back at least a year, the average time on the market for Dutchess County properties rose to 423 days, up from 186 a year earlier, while the average listing discounted grew to -21.5 percent versus -6.2 percent in the first quarter of 2015.

Columbia County

Five properties changed hands in Columbia County during the first quarter of 2016. They included a delightful mix of old and newer farmhouses and one exquisitely restored and expanded stone house dating to the 1820s. The median sale price was $1.0 million, down from $2.1 million in the year-earlier quarter, when nine properties sold.

If sales were modest, inventory was not. There were 126 properties listed in Columbia County in the first quarter, up from 108 a year earlier. The average listing had been on the market for 191 days, up from 115 a year earlier, while the average listing discount for properties that sold widened to -13.4 percent from -6.0%.

Ulster County

Alone in the region, Ulster County saw an uptick in home sales during the first quarter of 2016, with six properties sold versus four in the year-earlier quarter. Among the properties sold were one that had been used as an animal sanctuary in Woodstock, and a 162-acre mountain sanctuary in Gardiner with spectacular views of the Hudson Valley. Sale prices were clustered in a tight range, from a low of $825,000 to a high of $999,999, yielding a median price of $938,000. That was down from a median price of $1.3 million in the year-earlier first quarter.

Unlike its neighbor counties, Ulster saw its average listing discount for homes sold shrink, to -8.3 percent in this year's first quarter versus -10.8 percent a year earlier. ago. The number of homes listed for sale grew to 174 from 98 a year earlier, while the number of days those homes were on the market also crept higher, to 195 from 155 in the first quarter of 2015.

Outlook

While it is impossible to discern a trend in one quarter's numbers, there's no debating that the luxury housing market slowed in the Hudson Valley during the first quarter of 2016. We agree that the turmoil in global financial markets likely contributed to the slowdown.

We also believe that despite the hefty price brought by Astor Courts, buyers generally are not in the mood to pay up for real estate right now—even luxury real estate in the beautiful Hudson Valley. Many bids continue to come in below asking price, especially at the higher end of the market. For sellers who are finding the wait for the right buyer difficult, we offer the gentle reminder that the market value of any home is always determined not by past sale prices or sentimental value to the seller, but only by what today's buyers are willing to pay. Accepting that can make it easier to reach a deal and can allow sellers to realize their ultimate goal of moving on to the next phase of their lives.

Despite the slower pace of sales in the first quarter, we are encouraged by the activity we see behind the scenes in the Hudson Valley luxury market. We know, for example, that when winter segued into spring we saw a noticeable uptick in listing activity. We know that there continues to be interest in the region from potential buyers interested in properties that might be developed into retreats or wellness centers. And we know that the Hudson Valley, just 90 minutes or so from New York City, continues to offer harried urbanites a respite from the hectic pace of city life, often for less than the cost of similar properties in other luxury markets. We remain happy to call this region our home.
